

Hello my friends.

Today in this video I am going to share with you 8 steps to become confident in English.

Do you feel nervous when you speak English?

Maybe your heart beats fast.

Maybe you forget all your words.

Maybe you think... everyone is judging you.

I understand.

I was exactly like you.

But today, I'm going to share something important with you.

Confidence in English... doesn't come from perfect grammar.

It doesn't come from knowing every word.

So where does it come from?

Stay with me, and I'll show you.

Confidence is that feeling... when you can speak freely.

When you don't worry so much.

When you enjoy speaking English.

Many students ask me the same question.

They say, "How can I feel more confident?"

So today, I want to answer this question.

And I want to make it simple for you.

Because confidence... is simpler than you think.

Number 1: understanding the problem.

First, let's talk about why you feel nervous.

Why do you feel scared to speak?

Most students have the same problem.

They want to be perfect.

They think, "I must speak like a native speaker."

They think, "I cannot make mistakes."

But here's the truth.

Native speakers make mistakes too.

I make mistakes.

Everyone makes mistakes.

Mistakes are normal.

Mistakes are part of learning.

So the first step to confidence is this:

Accept that mistakes are okay.

Say it with me: "Mistakes are okay."

Good.

When you accept mistakes, something changes.

The pressure goes away.

You feel lighter.

You feel more free.

Ok next number 2: small steps.

Now, let's talk about practice.

Many students think they need to speak for hours every day.

They think they need to find native speakers.

They think they need expensive courses.

But that's not true.

Confidence comes from small steps.

What do I mean?

Let me give you an example.

Imagine you want to climb a mountain.

Do you jump to the top?

No.

You take one step.

Then another step.

Then another.

Small steps.

English is the same.

Start small.

Maybe today, you speak one sentence in English.

Just one sentence.

Tomorrow, you speak two sentences.

Next week, you have a short conversation.

Small steps build confidence.

Big steps create fear.
So remember: start small.

Next number 3: Change Your Mindset

Here's something important.
Your mindset changes everything.
What is mindset?
Mindset is how you think.
Many students have a negative mindset.
They think, "My English is bad."
They think, "I'll never be good enough."
They think, "Native speakers will laugh at me."
But these thoughts... they hurt you.
They stop you from trying.
So we need to change this.
Instead of "My English is bad," say this:
"My English is improving every day."
Instead of "I'll never be good enough," say this:
"I'm on a journey, and I'm making progress."
Instead of "People will laugh at me," say this:
"Most people respect anyone who tries to learn their language."
Do you see the difference?
Positive thoughts create positive feelings.
Positive feelings create confidence.

Number 4: Practice Self-Compassion.

Now, I want to teach you something very important.
It's called self-compassion.
Self-compassion means... being kind to yourself.
When you make a mistake, don't be angry at yourself.
Don't say, "I'm so stupid."
Don't say, "I'll never learn."

Instead, be kind.

Say, "That's okay. I'm learning."

Say, "Next time, I'll do better."

Treat yourself like you would treat a good friend.

If your friend made a mistake in English, would you laugh at them?

No.

You would encourage them.

You would say, "Good try! Keep going!"

So do the same for yourself.

Be your own best friend.

This is very powerful.

When you're kind to yourself, you feel safe to try.

And trying is how you learn.

And learning builds confidence.

Number 5: Focus on Communication, Not Perfection

Here's a secret that changed everything for me.

The goal of English is not perfection.

The goal is communication.

What does this mean?

It means... if people understand you, you succeeded.

Maybe your grammar wasn't perfect.

Maybe you used the wrong word.

Maybe your pronunciation was different.

But if the other person understood your message...

You communicated successfully.

That's what matters.

Think about this.

When someone speaks your native language with mistakes, do you understand them?

Usually, yes.

And do you think they're bad at the language?

No.

You think, "Wow, they're trying. That's impressive."
Other people think the same about you.
They see your effort.
They respect your courage.
So stop chasing perfection.
Start chasing connection.
Start chasing communication.

Number 6: Create Safe Spaces to Practice

Now, let's talk about where to practice.
This is important for building confidence.
You need safe spaces.

What is a safe space?

A safe space is a place where you feel comfortable.

Where you don't feel judged.

Where you can make mistakes freely.

Here are some ideas:

Practice speaking to yourself.

Yes, to yourself.

Speak in front of a mirror.

Describe your day in English.

Talk about your feelings.

This helps you get comfortable with your own voice.

Another idea: record yourself.

Use your phone.

Record yourself speaking for one minute.

Then listen to it.

This helps you hear your progress.

You can also practice with language exchange partners online.

Find someone who is also learning.

You can help each other.

There's no pressure.

You're both learning together.

And finally, you can practice with AI chatbots.

They never judge you.
They're always patient.
They're available anytime.
Find your safe spaces.
Practice there first.
Build your confidence slowly.
Then, you can speak in more challenging situations.

Ok next number 7 : Celebrate Small Wins

Here's something most people forget.

Celebrate your progress.

Every small victory counts.

Did you speak English today, even just one sentence?

Celebrate it.

Did you understand a video in English?

Celebrate it.

Did you try to speak, even if you made mistakes?

Celebrate it.

Why is this important?

Because celebration creates positive emotions.

Positive emotions create motivation.

Motivation creates more practice.

More practice creates confidence.

It's a beautiful cycle.

But it starts with celebration.

So tonight, before you sleep, think about this:

What did I do well in English today?

Maybe something small.

That's okay.

Acknowledge it.

Be proud of yourself.

You're doing something difficult.

You're learning a new language.

That takes courage.

That takes effort.

You deserve to feel proud.

Number 8: Remember Your 'Why

I want to ask you something.

Why are you learning English?

Think about it for a moment.

Maybe you want to travel the world.

Maybe you want a better job.

Maybe you want to connect with people from different countries.

Maybe you want to study abroad.

Maybe you love English movies and music.

Whatever your reason is... hold onto it.

When you feel discouraged, remember your 'why.'

Your 'why' gives you strength.

Your 'why' reminds you that this journey is worth it.

I learned English because I wanted to connect with people.

I wanted to share ideas.

I wanted to understand different cultures.

That dream kept me going.

Even when it was hard.

Even when I felt embarrassed.

My 'why' was stronger than my fear.

So find your 'why.'

Write it down.

Look at it every day.

Let it guide you.

My friend, let me tell you something.

Confidence doesn't happen overnight.

It's not magic.

It's a journey.

Some days, you'll feel great.

Some days, you'll feel frustrated.

That's normal.

That's part of the process.

But if you keep going...

If you're kind to yourself...

If you practice little by little...

If you focus on communication, not perfection...

Your confidence will grow.

I promise you this.

I've seen it happen with thousands of students.

And it will happen with you too.

So don't give up.

Keep speaking.

Keep trying.

Keep believing in yourself.

You have everything you need inside you already.

You just need to let it come out.

And remember: every word you speak in English...

Every mistake you make...

Every time you try...

You're becoming more confident.

You're becoming better.

You're becoming the English speaker you want to be.

Thank you for watching today.

If this video helped you, please like and subscribe.

Write in the comments: What will you do today to build your confidence?

I read every comment.

Remember, I believe in you.

See you in the next video.

Goodbye for now.