

Hello and welcome back to easy English The Podcast

This is the place to learn English With confidence.

Am Zain

I have a question for you?

Give me the answer in the comments.

Do you feel nervous when you try to order a coffee in English?

Do your words stop when you want to ask for simple directions?

Your mind knows English, but your mouth stays quiet.

If this sounds like you, you are not alone.

Many English learners face this problem every day.

These small talks are called micro-conversations.

They look easy, but they feel very hard.

But today, everything will change.

In this video, you will learn simple and exact phrases.

Phrases that people use in real life.

Phrases that make you sound natural and confident.

Step by step, we will practice together.

So relax, take a breath, and start speaking English with confidence — right now.

Most English learners think, “My grammar is weak.”

“My vocabulary is small.”

But this is not the real problem.

The real problem is confidence.

You already know many English words.

You understand English videos.

You understand movies.

You understand teachers.

But when it is time to speak,
something happens inside you.

Your heart beats fast.

Your mind becomes noisy.

Your mouth becomes quiet.

Why?

Because your brain starts thinking too much.

You think:

“What if I say something wrong?”

“What if my sentence is incorrect?”

“What if people laugh at me?”

“What if my accent is bad?”

This fear creates a wall inside you.

This wall is invisible.

But it is very strong.

This is called the confidence gap.

You don't have a vocabulary gap.

You don't have a grammar gap.

You have a confidence gap.

And this gap appears only in real life.

When you study at home, you feel fine.

When you watch videos, you feel confident.

But when you stand in front of people,

your confidence disappears.

That is why you freeze.

Not because you are bad at English.

But because you are scared of making mistakes.

Let me be very clear.

Making mistakes is normal.

Making mistakes is human.

Making mistakes means you are learning.

Even native speakers make mistakes.

So if you are waiting for perfect English, you will wait forever.

Today, we will not focus on perfection.

Today, we will focus on small speaking wins.

And these wins start with very small conversations.

Now let's understand one important idea.

What are micro-conversations?

Micro-conversations are short, simple talks that we use every day in real life.

They are not long.

They are not difficult.

But they are very important.

For example:

Ordering food or coffee

Asking for directions

Buying something from a shop

Talking to a cashier

Saying thank you or sorry

These conversations usually last only 10 seconds or 20 seconds.

But for many English learners, these 10 seconds feel very heavy.

Why?

Because these talks happen in public.

People are around you.

You feel pressure.

You feel rushed.

You feel watched.

So your brain starts working too fast.

You start translating from your language.

You start searching for perfect grammar.

And suddenly, you say nothing.

That is why micro-conversations feel hard.

But here is the truth.

Micro-conversations use the same sentences again and again.

People do not use new English every day.

They repeat the same simple lines.

That means,

if you learn these small conversations once, you can use them everywhere.

Think about this.

You don't need 10,000 words.

You need 20 to 30 strong sentences for daily life.

When you master these sentences:

Your fear becomes smaller

Your confidence becomes stronger

Your speaking becomes automatic

Micro-conversations are like keys.

Small keys.

But they open big doors.

They open:

Daily life

Social confidence

Speaking flow

Today, we will break these conversations into easy steps.

You will learn:

How to start

How to continue

How to finish politely

No pressure.

No stress.

Just simple English

for real life.

Now let's move to another very common situation.

Asking for directions.

This happens when:

you are in a new place

you are traveling

you cannot find a bus stop, office, or shop

Many English learners feel very nervous here. They think, “What if I don’t understand?” “What if I ask the wrong question?”

But relax. Asking for directions uses very simple English.

STEP 1: GET ATTENTION POLITELY

Never start directly.

First, be polite.

Use one of these:

“Excuse me.”

“Sorry to bother you.”

These two words are very powerful. They make people feel comfortable. They make you sound polite.

STEP 2: ASK FOR HELP

After that, ask for help.

Say:

“Can you help me?”

“Can I ask you something?”

This prepares the listener. Now they are ready to help you.

STEP 3: ASK YOUR QUESTION CLEARLY

Now ask your main question.

Use simple sentences like:

“How can I get to the bus stop?”

“Where is the nearest ATM?”

“Is there a supermarket near here?”

You don’t need long grammar. Clear English is enough.

STEP 4: LISTEN WITHOUT PANIC

Now the person will explain.

They may speak fast. They may use hand gestures.

Don’t panic.

You don’t need to understand everything. Just listen for key words:

left right

straight near next to

This is normal.

STEP 5: IF YOU DON'T UNDERSTAND, SAY THIS

Very important.

If you don't understand, do not stay silent.

Say:

"Sorry, can you repeat that?"

"Sorry, I didn't understand."

"Can you say it slowly, please?"

This is not rude. This is not weak. This is confident communication.

Even native speakers say this.

STEP 6: CONFIRM THE DIRECTION

If you want to be sure, ask again.

Say:

"So, I go straight and then turn left?"

"Is it near the bank?"

This shows you are listening. It helps avoid confusion.

STEP 7: END POLITELY

When they finish helping you, say:

"Thank you."

"Thank you so much."

"I really appreciate it."

This is very important. It leaves a good impression.

MINI PRACTICE (SAY IT ALOUD)

Practice these lines:

"Excuse me, can you help me?"

"Where is the nearest bus stop?"

"Sorry, can you say that again?"

"Thank you so much."

Practice slowly. Practice clearly.

IMPORTANT REMINDER

Asking for directions is not about perfect English. It is about being clear and polite.

People want to help you. They are not judging your English.

Every time you ask for directions, your confidence grows.

Now let's talk about another daily situation.

Shopping.

This can be:

a small local shop

a supermarket

a clothing store

a market

Many English learners feel nervous in shops. They worry they will say something wrong. But shopping English is very simple and repeated.

You only need a few clear sentences.

STEP 1: START THE CONVERSATION

When you enter a shop, the staff may say:

“Hello.”

“Can I help you?”

You don't need a long answer.

You can say:

“Yes, please.”

“I'm just looking, thank you.”

“I'm looking for a shirt.”

All of these are natural.

STEP 2: ASK ABOUT THE PRICE

If you like something and want to know the price, say:

“How much is this?”

“How much does this cost?”

Pointing is okay. Simple English is enough.

STEP 3: ASK FOR A DIFFERENT SIZE OR COLOR

Very common situation.

Use these lines:

“Do you have this in a bigger size?”

“Do you have this in small?”

“Do you have this in another color?”

You don't need perfect grammar. The message is clear.

STEP 4: ASK FOR HELP OR INFORMATION

Sometimes you need more information.

You can say:

“Can I try this on?”

“Is this on sale?”

“Where is the fitting room?”

Short questions are normal in shops.

STEP 5: WHEN YOU WANT TO BUY

If you decide to buy, say:

“I’ll take this.”

“I’d like to buy this.”

Both are correct. Both sound natural.

STEP 6: WHEN YOU DON’T WANT TO BUY

Sometimes you don’t want the item. That is okay.

Say politely:

“I’ll think about it. Thank you.”

“Not today, thank you.”

This is polite and common.

STEP 7: AT THE CASHIER

At the counter, they may say:

“Cash or card?”

“Would you like a bag?”

You can answer:

“Card, please.”

“Cash, please.”

“Yes, please.”

“No, thank you.”

Very easy English.

STEP 8: END THE CONVERSATION POLITELY

Before leaving, say:

“Thank you.”

“Thank you so much.”

“Have a nice day.”

This makes you sound friendly and confident.

MINI PRACTICE (SAY IT ALOUD)

Practice these lines:

“How much is this?”

“Do you have this in a bigger size?”

“I’ll take this.”

“Card, please.”

“Thank you so much.”

Practice slowly. Repeat them daily.

IMPORTANT REMINDER

Shopping English is not difficult. It is repeated every day.

When you practice these lines:

your fear becomes smaller

your confidence becomes stronger

Small conversations create big change.

Now let’s improve your English even more.

You already know how to speak. Now we will learn how to sound polite, calm, and natural.

This part is very important.

Because sometimes your English is correct, but it sounds hard or direct.

Small polite words fix this problem.

WHY POLITENESS MATTERS

In English, politeness is very important.

People don’t just listen to your words. They feel your attitude.

Polite English makes people:

more comfortable

more helpful

more friendly

And it also makes you feel confident.

THE MOST IMPORTANT POLITE WORDS

Use these words every day:

Please

Use it when asking for something.

Example:

“Can I get a coffee, please?”

“Can you help me, please?”

Thank you

Use it after someone helps you.

Example:

“Thank you.”

“Thank you so much.”

Excuse me

Use it to get attention politely.

Example:

“Excuse me, can you help me?”

Sorry

Use it when you don’t understand or need repetition.

Example:

“Sorry, I didn’t understand.”

“Sorry, can you repeat that?”

These words are simple, but they change everything.

HOW TO ASK FOR CLARIFICATION CONFIDENTLY

Many learners feel shy when they don’t understand.

They think, “I should understand everything.”

This is not true.

Good speakers ask questions.

Use these lines:

“Sorry, can you say that again?”

“Can you speak a little slowly, please?”

“What does this mean?”

These sentences are normal. They show confidence, not weakness.

TONE IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN GRAMMAR

You don’t need perfect grammar.

If your tone is calm and polite, people will understand you.

Speak slowly. Smile if you can. Take small pauses.

This is natural English.

COMMON MISTAKE TO AVOID

Do not stay silent.

If you don't understand, say something.

Silence creates fear. Speaking creates confidence.

Even one small sentence is enough.

MINI PRACTICE (SAY IT ALOUD)

Practice these lines:

"Excuse me, please."

"Sorry, can you repeat that?"

"Thank you so much."

"I really appreciate it."

Repeat them daily.

Now let's talk about something very important.

Many English learners make the same mistake.

They think:

"I must speak perfectly."

"I should not make any mistakes."

"If my grammar is wrong, people will judge me."

This is the biggest reason learners stay silent.

WHY PERFECTION IS A PROBLEM

Perfection creates fear.

You overthink every word.

You pause too long.

You freeze in small conversations.

The truth is:

No one speaks perfect English.

Not even native speakers.

Even in their own language, people make mistakes.

They pause, repeat, and correct themselves.

So why are you trying to be perfect in English?

The goal is not perfection.

The goal is communication.

FOCUS ON SPEAKING, NOT GRAMMAR

When you speak, focus on:

being clear being polite

being understood

You don't need long sentences.

You don't need difficult words.

Simple, short sentences work best in real life.

For example:

“Can I get a coffee, please?”

Not: “May I please have a medium-sized cappuccino with skimmed milk, if it is possible?”

Simple English is powerful.

LEARN FROM MISTAKES

Mistakes are your friend.

Each mistake teaches you:

a better sentence

a better pronunciation

more confidence next time

Don't hide from mistakes.

Don't fear them.

Use them to grow.

PRACTICE CONFIDENCE OVER PERFECTION

Start with small steps:

One micro-conversation per day

One small sentence in public

One polite question to a stranger

Every small action is a win.

Every win builds confidence.

Confidence grows faster than grammar knowledge.

MINI PRACTICE (SAY IT ALOUD)

Say this to yourself before speaking English:

“It's okay to make mistakes.”

“I just need to be clear.”

“Small sentences are enough.”

“Confidence is more important than perfection.”

Repeat this every day.

IMPORTANT REMINDER

Stop waiting for perfect English.

Start speaking now.

Start small.

Start simple.

Mistakes do not stop you.

Fear stops you.

So push your fear aside and speak.

Thanks for watching bye bye
