

Welcome back to easy English The Podcast...

If your a business man.

If your a job holder.

And...

If your a student.

Today's episode is very very important and super special for you.

Stop for a moment and listen to me carefully

Maybe people doubted you... or laughed at you.

Maybe you're tired, afraid, or feel alone.

But here's the truth:

You are not weak.

You are not a failure.

You are stronger than your pain, braver than your fear, and closer to your dream than you think.

The people who succeed aren't the ones who never fall — they are the ones who get back up every time.

Your dream is still alive.

Your future is still possible.

Remember this:

You don't fail when you fall.

You fail only when you stop trying.

And today... choose to keep going.

Before you can do anything great in life, you must first believe in yourself.

Because if you don't believe,
no one else will.

You can have big dreams,
you can have great talent,
you can even have people around you who care.
But if you don't trust yourself,
nothing will change.

Belief is the seed that grows success.
It is invisible,
but it is powerful.

When you say, "I can,"
your mind becomes strong.
When you say, "I can't,"
your dream starts to die.

So be careful with your words.
Your words build your world.

People will doubt you.
Some will laugh.
Some will tell you, "It's impossible."
But impossible is just a word;
it's not your destiny.

Every great story began with one person who believed when no one else did.

The world said, "No."
But they said, "Yes."
The world said, "You can't."
But they whispered, "Watch me."

And that is how dreamers become winners.

Believing in yourself doesn't mean you will never fail.
It means you will stand up after you fall.

When people walk away, keep walking.
When doors close, knock again.
When your heart breaks, heal and rise.

Because inside you, there is a fighter.
There is strength.
There is power.
And there is a reason you are still here.

You have already survived so much,
so don't doubt your strength now.

You are not weak.
You are not behind.
You are becoming who you are meant to be.

Say this to yourself every morning:
"I believe in myself."
"I am enough."
"I will make it."

Even if nobody claps for you,
clap for yourself.
Even if nobody sees your effort,
keep giving your best.
Even if nobody understands your pain,
keep moving with faith.

Because your belief is stronger than your fear.
Your belief is more powerful than your past.

And one day,
that belief will turn into results—
beautiful, powerful, life-changing results.

So keep believing.
Even when it's dark.
Even when you're tired.
Even when the world says, "You can't."

Because the truth is,
you can.
You always could.
You just needed to believe it.

Believe in yourself so deeply that even fear starts to doubt you.

PART number 3 — Failures Are Lessons.

Everyone wants success.
Everyone wants to win.
But nobody wants to fail.

We live in a world that celebrates winners,
and forgets the ones who fell on the way.
But what people don't tell you is this — failure is not your enemy.
Failure is your teacher.

When you fail,
it doesn't mean you are not good enough.
It simply means you are learning something new.
It means you are moving forward.
It means you are trying.

People who never fail are people who never try.

So if you have failed,
don't be ashamed.
Don't hide your scars.
Be proud, because your scars show your courage.
They show that you had the strength to begin.

Every successful person you know today has a story filled with failure.

Thomas Edison failed more than a thousand times before he created the light bulb.
J.K. Rowling's book was rejected by twelve publishers before Harry Potter became a worldwide success.
Michael Jordan was cut from his school basketball team, but he became one of the greatest players in history.

They failed — but they didn't stop.
They used failure as a lesson, not as a wall.

That's the secret.
Failure only defeats those who quit.
It strengthens those who continue.

So the next time you fail,
don't say, "Why me?"
Say, "What can I learn from this?"

Because every failure is a message.
It teaches patience.
It teaches strength.
It teaches humility.

It shows you who you really are.

When you lose, you grow.

When you fall, you rise wiser.

When something breaks, you rebuild stronger.

The road to success is never straight.

It is full of turns, breaks, and bumps.

But every fall, every mistake, every wrong turn is leading you toward your best version.

So don't fear failure.

Welcome it.

Because failure is not the end of your story—
it is the beginning of your strength.

The people who succeed are not those who never fall.

They are the ones who never stop getting back up.

When life pushes you down, stand taller.

When things go wrong,
take a deep breath and try again.

Because one more try might be the one that changes everything.

You see, failure is not the opposite of success.

Failure is a part of success.

Without failure, there is no growth.

Without mistakes, there is no wisdom.

Without struggle, there is no strength.

So if you are failing today,

remember this:
You are not losing.
You are learning.

Keep going.
Keep learning.
Keep improving.

Because one day,
you will look back at all the times you failed and smile —
because those failures built the person who finally won.

Failure doesn't stop you unless you let it.
Learn from it.
Grow from it.
And rise again — stronger than before.

PART number 4 — Focus on Your Goal

There will be days when you lose direction.
There will be moments when your mind feels tired and your heart feels heavy.
You will start something with excitement, but after some time, the motivation fades.
You will begin to question yourself —
“Why am I doing this?”
“Will I ever reach my dream?”

That's when you must remember this truth:
Focus is the key.

If you lose focus,
you lose power.
If you lose focus,
you lose purpose.

Don't let distractions steal your dream.
Don't let noise from the world silence your inner voice.
Keep your eyes on the goal,
even when everything around you tries to pull you away.

People will talk.
They will laugh.
They will judge.
But their words are not your reality.
Their opinions cannot decide your future.

Your job is not to prove them wrong.
Your job is to prove yourself right.

Stay loyal to your vision.
Stay faithful to your purpose.
And most importantly — stay focused.

Every great achievement began with focus.
The mountain climber looks only at the top,
not at the stones on the path.
The athlete looks at the finish line,
not at the people shouting on the side.
And the dreamer looks at the goal,
not at the failures behind him.

If you focus on the problem, the problem grows.
If you focus on the goal, the solution comes closer.

Focus is not about ignoring reality —
it's about giving your energy to what matters most.
It's about saying,
“I will not waste my time on fear.
I will not waste my heart on doubt.
I will use my strength for my dream.”

So, protect your focus.
Protect your time.
Protect your peace.

Not everyone will understand your journey.
Not everyone will support you.
But that's okay.
Your vision was given to you, not to them.

When it gets hard, remind yourself —
You are not doing this to impress anyone.
You are doing this to become the person you were meant to be.

There will be noise.
There will be pressure.
There will be pain.
But through all of it,
keep your eyes fixed on the goal.

One step at a time.
One day at a time.
Because every small step forward is still progress.

Don't let comparison steal your peace.
Don't look at others and think you are behind.
You are on your own path.

You are moving at your own pace.

Success is not about being faster.

It's about being focused.

So keep your focus, even when life distracts you.

Keep your focus, even when you feel alone.

Keep your focus, even when the results are slow.

Because one day,

your focus will turn into achievement.

Your consistency will turn into confidence.

Your dream will turn into reality.

And on that day, you'll look back and realize —

It wasn't luck.

It wasn't magic.

It was your focus that made it possible.

So stay steady.

Stay clear.

Stay strong.

Your goal is waiting for you.

And if you stay focused long enough,

you will reach it —

no matter how far it seems today.

Focus creates winners.

Distraction creates dreamers who never finish.

Choose focus — and finish your story strong.

PART number 5 — Keep Going, Even When It's Hard.

There will come a time when everything feels heavy.
When your mind says, “Stop.”
When your body says, “I can’t.”
When your heart whispers, “Maybe I should give up.”

And that’s the exact moment you must keep going.

Because the road to your dream is not easy.
It’s full of turns, struggles, and silent battles.
There will be nights when you can’t sleep,
days when you feel lost,
and moments when you question your purpose.

But remember this — easy roads never lead to great destinations.

The path to success is never straight.
You will fall.
You will fail.
You will cry.
But those moments don’t mean you’re weak.
They mean you’re human.
They mean you’re fighting.

Every champion has cried behind closed doors.
Every winner has wanted to quit.
Every strong person has broken down in silence.
But they got up.
They wiped their tears.
And they took one more step.

That’s what makes them different.
That’s what makes them unstoppable.

You don't need to be strong all the time.

You just need to keep moving — slowly, quietly, but forward.

Because progress is not about speed.

Progress is about direction.

Even if you move an inch today, you're still ahead of where you were yesterday.

Maybe your dream is taking time.

Maybe your results are not showing yet.

But remember — seeds grow in silence before they bloom.

The roots grow underground before the flowers appear.

Your success is growing, even if you can't see it yet.

So keep working when no one is watching.

Keep believing when no one supports you.

Keep moving when no one claps for you.

You're not doing it for applause.

You're doing it for your future.

You're doing it for your purpose.

Yes, it's hard.

Yes, it hurts.

Yes, sometimes you'll want to quit.

But think about why you started.

Think about that dream you saw in your heart.

Think about that version of you who never gave up — the one you promised you'd become.

Don't break that promise.

One more try can change everything.

One more step can open the next door.

One more day of patience can bring the miracle you've been waiting for.

You don't need to be perfect.

You just need to keep going.

So when it's hard — go anyway.

When it's painful — move anyway.

When it's dark — shine anyway.

When you feel tired — rest, but don't quit.

Remember: pain doesn't last forever.

Every storm ends.

Every night turns into morning.

Every struggle has a purpose.

And one day, you'll look back and say,

“I made it through.”

“I didn't give up.”

“I am stronger now.”

That will be your victory —

not because life was easy, but because you refused to stop.

Keep going, even when it's hard.

Because what's waiting for you is greater than what's behind you.

Your future needs your courage.

Your dream needs your effort.

Your destiny needs your patience.

So lift your head.

Take a deep breath.
And take that next step — no matter how small it is.

Because one small step today can lead to the biggest change of your life tomorrow.

At the end of the day, life is not about how many times you fall.
It's about how many times you stand back up.

Every time you get up after failure,
you become stronger.
Every time you face fear,
you grow braver.
Every time you keep going when you want to quit, you write a new part of your story — the part that shows who you really are.

You are not defined by your mistakes.
You are defined by your comeback.

So, no matter where you are right now — no matter how many times you've failed, no matter how long it's taking,
no matter who walked away —
don't stop now.

The dream that lives inside you is still alive.
It's waiting for you to believe again.

Close your eyes for a moment and imagine the person you want to become.
Imagine the life you want to live.
Imagine the happiness you want to feel.
Now open your eyes —

that vision is possible.
It's not just a dream.
It's your future,
but only if you keep walking toward it.

You may move slowly.
You may get tired.
But don't you dare stop.

Because every step, every effort, every drop of sweat —
it all matters.
It all adds up.

The journey may be long,
but the reward is real.

You will meet people who don't understand your dream.
You will face moments when you feel alone.
You will question your strength.
But when that happens,
remember why you started.

Remember that little spark inside you —
the one that whispered,
“I want more.”
“I can do this.”
“I'm not done yet.”

That voice is still inside you.
Don't let the noise of the world silence it.

When life gets hard, don't run away from the storm —
walk through it.

Because storms don't last forever.
And when the clouds clear,
you'll see how far you've come.

Every struggle is shaping you.
Every pain is teaching you.
Every fall is preparing you for something greater.

So never give up.
Not on your dreams.
Not on your purpose.
Not on yourself.

Because your time will come.
Your breakthrough will arrive.
Your hard work will be worth it.

And one day, you'll look in the mirror and say,
"I made it."
"I kept going."
"I never gave up."

That will be the most beautiful victory of all.

So from today —
no matter how hard i t gets,
no matter how far it feels,
no matter how many times you fall — stand tall, breathe deep, and keep moving.

Your story is not over yet.
It's just the beginning.

And remember this forever:
You don't fail when you fall.
You fail only when you stop trying.

So don't stop.
Don't quit.
Never give up.

Because you are stronger than you think,
braver than you believe,
and closer to your dream than you realize.

Keep going —
the world needs your light.
Your dream needs your courage.
And your future needs you.

Never give up.
